

Notice on Copyright and Use of Purchased Software in the Computer Lab

Audience: All

Version: v1.0 • 2026-06

Usage Declaration: By using any lab computer equipment, you agree to comply with the software copyright and licensing requirements in this document. If you do not agree, do not use the equipment and contact the lab administrator first.

Disclaimer: License terms may change. Always refer to the latest vendor documentation, software EULA, and the latest university procurement contract.

一、 MATLAB

1. Official License Reference

MATLAB education licenses are limited to internal teaching, coursework, and non-commercial academic research. Commercial development, paid services, and installation or use on unlicensed devices are prohibited. See Section 2.2 Educational Institutions for details.

2. License Scope

- Permitted: internal teaching, coursework, and non-commercial academic research.
- Prohibited: commercial development, paid services, and installation or use on unlicensed devices.

二、 JetBrains

1. Official License Reference

Visit https://www.jetbrains.com/legal/docs/toolbox/license_educational/

2. License Scope

- Permitted: coursework, programming assignments, academic research, non-commercial open-source projects, and academic competitions.

- Prohibited: commercial software development, accepting outsourced commercial work, providing services to paying clients, and sharing or transferring personal educational licenses.
- Expiry and eligibility changes: educational licenses must be renewed per official policy and are no longer valid after graduation or departure.

三、 Other Software Not Listed

1. Default Compliance Rule

Any software not explicitly listed in this document is still subject to the vendor's latest license terms, EULA, and applicable university procurement and IT policies.

2. Allowed Use and Restrictions

- Allowed: use within the license scope confirmed by the vendor terms and university authorization.
- Prohibited: unlicensed installation, use beyond authorized scope, commercial use without explicit authorization, and license sharing or transfer.
